

The helmet of a close fielder is discarded behind the wicketkeeper. The batsman edges a delivery high above the keeper, who stands on and jumps off the helmet and claims the catch. What do you give?

An injured fielder is replaced by a twelfth man who excels at cover point. When he adopts this position in the field, both batsmen object and insist he fields further away from the bat, preferably at third man. What is your decision?

A bowler with an exceptionally long follow through is annoyed as the batsman snicks the ball and sets off for a quick single. He remains in the direct path of the batsman, making no effort to move, and they collide, resulting in a run-out. The batsman insists he was obstructed. What is your decision?

A player gives you his mobile phone to look after. You think it's off, but it rings as the bowler is in his delivery stride. The batsman misses the ball and is bowled middle stump - but claims he was put off by the ring. What do you do?
